Answer

Each night, we have a full backup of the database. There are incremental backups done hourly. For the Web Servers there is a "VMWare" server (virtual server – not a physical server). This virtual server is a "vmdk" instance. A copy of that entire instance is made each night and if the entire server failed or became corrupted and couldn’t run, we could restore that entire VMDK (thus, “recreating” that server to yesterday’s date).
